Paris 1871 and Fatsa 1979: Revisiting the Transition Problematique

The author of this paper/presentation has given IIPPE the permission to upload this paper on IIPPE's website. The work presented in this paper is entirely my own except where other authors have been referred to and acknowledged in the text. It is not in the process of being peer review at any academic journal. The views expressed in the paper/presentation is my own, and IIPPE or any member of IIPPE cannot be hold responsible for any statements made in this paper/presentation, whatsoever.

Onur Acaroglu

University of Birmingham

Department of Political Science and International Studies

ioa597@bham.ac.uk
A General Theory of Transition?

- Marxian neglect
- Limit cases: What is ‘ruptural’ about ruptural moments?
- Contemporary radicalism
Noncontemporaneity and décalage I

- Marx
  - Necessity of contingency
  - Against teleological closure
  - The Paris Commune: “The great social measure of the Commune was its own working existence”

- Noncontemporaneity
  - Grundrisse: “In all forms of society there is one specific kind of production which predominates over the rest, whose relations thus assign rank and influence to the others. It is a general illumination which bathes all the other colours and modifies their particularity. It is a particular ether which determines the specific gravity of every being which has materialized within it.”
  - Letter to Vera Zasulich: The Russian Mir as a proto-communist institution
The Commune and décalage II

Althusser

- Social formation: “Totality of instances articulated on the basis of a determinate mode of production”
- Against historical closure: ’time of times’
- Theory of the conjuncture: Essential instability

Balibar

Co-constitutive temporal dislocation between

- Economic: Structural change in the mode of production
- Political: Transformation in the nature of state power
- Ideological practices: Change in the flow of social reproduction, changing ’mindsets’
- Political struggle + Economic contradiction = Rupture as social history
Paris 1871 - Women’s Union for the Defense of Paris and Aid to the Wounded

- Revolutionary government defended by the National Guard
- Elisabet Dmitrieff “An end to all competition between male and female workers—their interests are identical and their solidarity is essential to the final worldwide strike of labor against capital.”
- Abolition of ‘illegitimacy’ of children
- Socialized education and daycare
Fatsa 1979 - Revolutionary Path (Dev-Yol) and People’s Committees

- Raids against hoarding and usury
- Hazelnut demonstrations
- End to the Mud Campaign
- İmece
Operationalizing Transition

- Contemporaneous non-contemporaneity: Transitional political/social forms?
- Political struggle and economic history: History as lived praxis
- The complex present and the prefigurative not-yet