Turkish Social Sciences Association (TSSA), established in 1967, is a non-profit organisation seeking to contribute to the development of social scientific research and dissemination of the knowledge thus produced through a variety of activities. Among these activities, special mention should be made of the bi-annual National Congresses of Social Sciences it organizes on a regular basis where on average no less than 250 papers are presented. It also organizes thematic workshops/conferences with the participation of Turkish and foreign academics. The proceedings of both national and international events are subsequently published as edited volumes. TSSA also acts as a hub of research activities conducted by its members which range across almost all disciplines of social sciences. TSSA is an active member of International Sociological Association (ISA) for many years. TSSA is run by a executive board of seven members, elected by its General Assembly, held on a regular basis in every two years.

Istanbul University Centre for Global Politics and Administration Research (GLOPAR) (www.kusyam.istanbul.edu.tr) was established in June 2010 by the staff of the Faculty of Political Sciences. GLOPAR aims to analyse global political and administrative processes and their implications for Turkey with an inter-disciplinary and comparative approach; be a platform of sharing knowledge with policy-making communities and the wider public; and be a medium for academics and students, providing a venue for the meeting of a variety of research interests, disciplinary approaches and backgrounds. The 2nd International Conference in Political Economy is the first big event of GLOPAR.
